Company also gives $1,000 to organization to assist needy families during the holiday season

DESHLER, Neb. (Feb. 9, 2007) – In the spirit of the holiday season Reinke® Manufacturing, Inc., a leading manufacturer of mechanized irrigation systems, recently held a food and clothing drive where company employees donated coats and non-perishable items to the Blue Valley Community Action (BVCA) to assist less fortunate families with their holiday needs. Reinke donated an additional $1,000 to the BVCA for local needy families.

“We’re proud to be a part of this community and it’s a priority for us to give back to others who might be less fortunate,” said Chris Roth, executive vice president, Reinke Manufacturing. “At Reinke, we believe it’s important to donate company resources and our own personal belongings in order to continue building friendships and strengthening our commitment to South Central Nebraska.”

This marks the third year that Reinke has donated money, clothing and food to the BVCA and the company intends to continue the holiday tradition moving forward.

“We appreciate Reinke’s support of the BVCA and look forward to their continued commitment to our community for years to come,” said Ryan Bailey, family and community services coordinator, BVCA.
